Index for Volume 10 (1986–1987)

By author

Boraks, N., & McLendon, L. (1986). Building support systems for volunteer tutors. 10(3), 12-15, 23.

Brady, E.M. (1987). A letter. 10(6), 21-22.

Bruce, R., Maxwell, D., & Galvin, P. (1986). Graduate study and the practice of adult education: A problem of congruence. 10(3), 4-7, 20.

Calhoun, A.B. (1986). Wanted: A continuing education curriculum. 10(2), 17, 20, 28, 29.

Cheek, E.H. Jr., Kritsonis, D., & Lindsey, J.D. (1987). Informal reading strategies for adult readers. 10(7), 8-10, 25-26.

Cherry, B.S. (1987). Problems in planning, implementing, and evaluating continuing education programs for health care providers. 10(8), 4-10.

Danis, C.D., & Tremblay, N.A. (1987). Propositions regarding autodidactic learning and their implications for teaching. 10(7), 4-7.

Davis, R.S., & Davis, G.L. (1987). Grouping students for effective learning in the ABE classroom. 10(5), 18-19.

Dauzat, S.V., & Dauzat, J.A. (1987). A new GED: Gearing up for change. 10(6), 27-30.

Erdman, J. (1987). Reflecting on teaching and adult education. 10(8), 19-22, 28.

Even, M.J. (1987). Why adults learn in different ways. 10(8), 23-26, 28.

Ewing, J.B., Ewing, M.E., London, J., & Ramirez-Ponce, Y. (1986). Adult education and computer literacy: A new challenge. 10(3), 21-23.

Fahy, P.J. (1986). Students' needs as the impetus for program change in adult basic education. 10(1), 25-26, 28, 30.

Fields, E.L. (1986). Industry-based programs: A growing source for adult literacy development. 10(1), 7-9.

Galbraith, M.W., & Leahy, M.A. (1987). Readership survey evokes Association response. 10(5), 10-14.

Gilley, J.W. (1987). Practical tools for developing a comprehensive training strategy. 10(6), 10-14.

Gladstone, C. (1987). Advising the nontraditional student: Putting theory into practice. 10(6), 7-9.

Goudreau, N. (1986). Improve your adult literacy instruction by vitalizing the research. 10(3), 17-20.

Goudreau, N. (1987). Improve your adult literacy instruction by vitalizing the research: Part II. 10(4), 11-14.

Keton, P.M., & Parker, J.T. (1986). Improving ABE: Adoption vs. new development. 10(1), 10-11, 15.

Knox, A.B. (1987). Reducing barriers to participation in continuing education. 10(5), 7-9.

Korhonen, L.J., & McCall, R.J. (1986). The interaction of learning style and learning environment on adult achievement. 10(2), 21-23.

Ludden, L.L., & Wood, G.S. Jr. (1987). Practice driven research: A model for bridging the gap between research and practice. 10(5), 21-25.

Malone, O., Jr. (1986). The adult deaf learner: A very neglected species. 10(3), 8-11, 23, 30.

Martin, L.G. (1986). Students life-style classifications: Key to improved literacy programs. 10(1), 12-15.

Mayes, C. Five critical thinking strategies for adult basic education learners. 10(7), 11-13, 25.

Meister, G.G. (1986). A case study of continuing education program development in a business setting. 10(2), 11-14.

Meister, G.G. (1987). Pilot programs : How to use them. 10(7), 19-20.

Merriam, S.B. (1986). The research-to-practice dilemma. 10(1), 4-6, 24.

Oaklief, C.R. (1987). Benefits of noncredit adult education for seven participant groups. 10(7), 21-25.

Oliver, L.P. (1987). The third world is a different world. 10(5), 27-31.

Paprock, K.E. (1987). A model for differentiation of adjunct faculty. 10(8), 29-30.

Parsons. M.D. (1987) Teaching workers to deal with job stress. 10(6), 4-6.

Reed, H.B. (1987). Conflicting images of nonformal education. 10(6), 23-25.

Rogers, J.J. (1987). Readability as a source of perceived failure in adult literacy instruction. 10(4), 26-28.

Rolls, D. (1987). Documenting experiental learning: Preparation of a portfolio for college credit. 10(6), 19-21.

Schormann, R.S. (1986). Professional development: "A prophet hath honor in his own country." 10(2), 26-27,29.

Schuttenberg, E.M., & Tracy, S.J. (1987). The role of the adult educator in fostering self-directed learning. 10(5), 4-6, 9.

Seckinger, D., & Day, M. (1986). Parenting education: The way we were. 10(2), 8-10, 23.

Sorcinelli, G., & Sorcinelli M.D. (1987). The lecture in an adult education environment: Teaching strategies. 10(4), 8-10, 14.

Smith, J.D. (1987). Graduate education desires, detractors, and determinants for Navy Aviation Officers. 10(8), 11, 10.

Taylor, K.K. (1987). Teaching writing in the GED program. 10(4), 23-25, 28.

Thistlethwaite, L.L., & Gray, C. (1986). The adult beginning reader: Assessment/discussion/instruction. 10(2), 4-7, 20.

Tucker, B., & Huerta, C. (1987). A study of developmental tasks as perceived by young adult Mexican-American females. 10(4), 4-7.

Weaver, R.A., & Kowalski, T.J. (1987). The case for program accreditation of doctoral degrees in adult education. 10(7), 14-15, 26-27.

Whitney, D.R. (1987). On practice and research: Confessions of an educational researcher. 10(8), 12-14, 31.

Index for Volume 10 (1986–1987)

By author

Boraks, N., & McLendon, L. (1986). Building support systems for volunteer tutors. 10(3), 12-15, 23.

Brady, E.M. (1987). A letter. 10(6), 21-22.

Bruce, R., Maxwell, D., & Galvin, P. (1986). Graduate study and the practice of adult education: A problem of congruence. 10(3), 4-7, 20.

Calhoun, A.B. (1986). Wanted: A continuing education curriculum. 10(2), 17, 20, 28, 29.

Cheek, E.H. Jr., Kritsonis, D., & Lindsey, J.D. (1987). Informal reading strategies for adult readers. 10(7), 8-10, 25-26.

Cherry, B.S. (1987). Problems in planning, implementing, and evaluating continuing education programs for health care providers. 10(8), 4-10.

Danis, C.D., & Tremblay, N.A. (1987). Propositions regarding autodidactic learning and their implications for teaching. 10(7), 4-7.

Davis, R.S., & Davis, G.L. (1987). Grouping students for effective learning in the ABE classroom. 10(5), 18-19.

Dauzat, S.V., & Dauzat, J.A. (1987). A new GED: Gearing up for change. 10(6), 27-30.

Erdman, J. (1987). Reflecting on teaching and adult education. 10(8), 19-22, 28.

Even, M.J. (1987). Why adults learn in different ways. 10(8), 23-26, 28.

Ewing, J.B., Ewing, M.E., London, J., & Ramirez-Ponce, Y. (1986). Adult education and computer literacy: A new challenge. 10(3), 21-23.

Fahy, P.J. (1986). Students' needs as the impetus for program change in adult basic education. 10(1), 25-26, 28, 30.

Fields, E.L. (1986). Industry-based programs: A growing source for adult literacy development. 10(1), 7-9.

Galbraith, M.W., & Leahy, M.A. (1987). Readership survey evokes Association response. 10(5), 10-14.

Gilley, J.W. (1987). Practical tools for developing a comprehensive training strategy. 10(6), 10-14.

Gladstone, C. (1987). Advising the nontraditional student: Putting theory into practice. 10(6), 7-9.

Goudreau, N. (1986). Improve your adult literacy instruction by vitalizing the research. 10(3), 17-20.

Goudreau, N. (1987). Improve your adult literacy instruction by vitalizing the research: Part II. 10(4), 11-14.

Keton, P.M., & Parker, J.T. (1986). Improving ABE: Adoption vs. new development. 10(1), 10-11, 15.

Knox, A.B. (1987). Reducing barriers to participation in continuing education. 10(5), 7-9.

Korhonen, L.J., & McCall, R.J. (1986). The interaction of learning style and learning environment on adult achievement. 10(2), 21-23.

Ludden, L.L., & Wood, G.S. Jr. (1987). Practice driven research: A model for bridging the gap between research and practice. 10(5), 21-25.

Malone, O., Jr. (1986). The adult deaf learner: A very neglected species. 10(3), 8-11, 23, 30.

Martin, L.G. (1986). Students life-style classifications: Key to improved literacy programs. 10(1), 12-15.

Mayes, C. Five critical thinking strategies for adult basic education learners. 10(7), 11-13, 25.

Meister, G.G. (1986). A case study of continuing education program development in a business setting. 10(2), 11-14.

Meister, G.G. (1987). Pilot programs : How to use them. 10(7), 19-20.

Merriam, S.B. (1986). The research-to-practice dilemma. 10(1), 4-6, 24.

Oaklief, C.R. (1987). Benefits of noncredit adult education for seven participant groups. 10(7), 21-25.

Oliver, L.P. (1987). The third world is a different world. 10(5), 27-31.

Paprock, K.E. (1987). A model for differentiation of adjunct faculty. 10(8), 29-30.

Parsons. M.D. (1987) Teaching workers to deal with job stress. 10(6), 4-6.

Reed, H.B. (1987). Conflicting images of nonformal education. 10(6), 23-25.

Rogers, J.J. (1987). Readability as a source of perceived failure in adult literacy instruction. 10(4), 26-28.

Rolls, D. (1987). Documenting experiental learning: Preparation of a portfolio for college credit. 10(6), 19-21.

Schormann, R.S. (1986). Professional development: "A prophet hath honor in his own country." 10(2), 26-27,29.

Schuttenberg, E.M., & Tracy, S.J. (1987). The role of the adult educator in fostering self-directed learning. 10(5), 4-6, 9.

Seckinger, D., & Day, M. (1986). Parenting education: The way we were. 10(2), 8-10, 23.

Sorcinelli, G., & Sorcinelli M.D. (1987). The lecture in an adult education environment: Teaching strategies. 10(4), 8-10, 14.

Smith, J.D. (1987). Graduate education desires, detractors, and determinants for Navy Aviation Officers. 10(8), 11, 10.

Taylor, K.K. (1987). Teaching writing in the GED program. 10(4), 23-25, 28.

Thistlethwaite, L.L., & Gray, C. (1986). The adult beginning reader: Assessment/discussion/instruction. 10(2), 4-7, 20.

Tucker, B., & Huerta, C. (1987). A study of developmental tasks as perceived by young adult Mexican-American females. 10(4), 4-7.

Weaver, R.A., & Kowalski, T.J. (1987). The case for program accreditation of doctoral degrees in adult education. 10(7), 14-15, 26-27.

Whitney, D.R. (1987). On practice and research: Confessions of an educational researcher. 10(8), 12-14, 31.